On Valentine's Day, show your love for Free Software!

on: 2010-02-12

This year on Valentine's Day, FSFE calls on Free Software users everywhere to show their love for Free Software. Behind every Free Software initiative and organisation there are real, hard-working people.

Free Software is everywhere. Its presence on desktop computers, servers, routers, mobile phones, television sets and in other electronics means that most of us use Free Software every day.

This is why for Valentine's Day, FSFE invites everyone to show their appreciation of the people who produce, distribute and promote Free Software.

“This year why not take the opportunity to show you care about the people who show you their love all year round?”, suggests Karsten Gerloff, FSFE's President. “Free Software is about making technology fit people's needs. It's people who are at the centre of it all, not computers.”

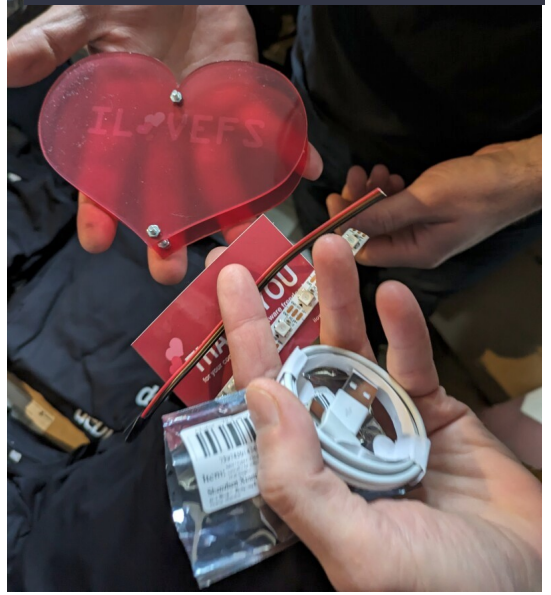
I ♥ Free Software Day & SUSE OSCC network

on: 2024-06-10

We got an email, a few weeks ago, that caught our attention. It came with a donation explaining that it was made in the name of an employee network at SUSE. We decided to investigate, asked the people responsible, and today we want to share this awesome story with you. (Note - this is also a great idea for an initiative to ask your company about).

Several weeks ago, we received a really nice message:

I'm part of a special interest group / employee network at SUSE called the SUSE Open Source Community Citizens (OSCC). In the spirit of the "I Love Free Software Day", we asked our SUSE colleagues to share why they got into and love Free Software. Every story told was being rewarded with 50 EUR that is going to be donated to the Free Software



Why do we need the “I Love Free Software Day”

Everybody appreciates a ”Thank you“

A thank you is

- Motivating
- Acknowledges the work done for projects
- Should be more than just words

Why do we need the “I Love Free Software Day”

Raise awareness and visibility for different Free Software communities

also outside the realm of Free Software enthusiasts

Create a positive and welcoming community
